POLITICAL NOTES.

—Hon. Henry Maxwell, of Easton, is a candidate for the President Judgeship of Northampton county.

—R. Bruce Petriken of Huntingdon, is mentioned in connection with the Democratic nomination for Lieutenant Governor.

—Mr. Thomas W. Jackson, of Gaysport, has been appointed Deputy Prothonotary of Blair county, in place of John R. Bohn, deceased.

—The Lock Haven Democrat favorably mentions the name of William A. Simpson, Esq., of that place, for the position of Lieutenant Governor.

—Charley Garner of this city is not the only colored man in the State, who has had the good fortune to be elevated to office. The Pittsburgh Commercial says: "Thomas Webster, a respectable colored man, was elected constable in West Middletown borough, Washington county. The world moves."

—The Tamaqua Item says: "We hear the name of our townsman, Michael Beard, Esq., prominently mentioned in connection with the Democratic nomination for Congress.

—Philadelphia has discovered, since Sumner made his speech against the Centennial, that he is a vastly overrated Statesman. The rest of the country discovered that long ago.

Ever since they found out that he was incapable of rising above being influenced by a mean personal spite.

—"Insanity among negroes, now of frequent occurence, was very rare before the war. Can some Radical philanthropist give a sane reason for its rapid increase?"—Kentucky paper.

Certainly. The increase of insanity among races is in almost exact ratio with their advance in civilization. Who ever heard of a Kentucky Bourbon going crazy?

—Under the system in vogue in Philadelphia, prior to the late election, there were in that city 367 election districts, and of these the Democrats carried 120. Under the new Constitution a new arrangement of districts was made, and the number was increased to 518, and of these the Democrats carried 118 at the late election. They do not appear to have profited much by the change.

BRIEF EDITORIALS.

Intelligence comes from Santa Fe, of the prevalance of lawlessness and ruffianism in Lincoln Co., New Mexico, to such an extent that the civil authorities are utterly powerless to put a stop to it or to bring offenders to justice. Over twenty murders have recently been committed, and among them were a man and his wife in bed. As the tide of emigration, advances it crowds upon the Indian reserves and upon exposed white settlers, and in sparsely settled districts a dozen bold brigands can defy the civil authorities. A detachment of cavalry is the only force that can squelch these lawless marauders.

Uncle Sam has an immense amount of clothing on hand which has been kept over since the late war. The wicked moth which feeds on woolens was a great pest and induced some inventive genius to devise a plan which he offered to sell to the Government, to prevent its ravages. It was excepted and to carry it into effect cost $350,000 the first year. The stock of clothing has been but slightly reduced, but under the retrenchment pressure the expense has been reduced to $50,000 for the current year, a saving of $300,000. The question is now asked, if there was not a moth ring?

Sometime ago a writer in Harper's Weekly suggested the propriety of using Alaska as a penal colony. Public attention is called anew to the subject by the action of the California Legislature in recommending its use for this purpose, and Congress will now be asked to take the subject into consideration. There is certainly great need of something to supply the deficiency of our present expensive prison system and the economical arguments used in favor of the Alaska plan should receive careful attention. Its reformatory feature is not the least of its recommendations.

The widows of the Siamese brothers certainly have an eye to the main chance which is not made second to their respect for their deceased husbands. The autopsy was not permitted until pledges had been given not to disfigure the faces of the dead so far as to spoil them for exhibition, and photographs were permitted to be taken, but the negatives were carefully copyrighted for the benefit of the disconsolate widows. It has rarely been the case that deceased husbands have been turned to so good an account.

Insurrection and rebellion have become chronic in British Columbia, and the people of that territory seem desirious of emulating Mexico both politically and socially. An unpopular but necessary measure was recently pending when the sovereign people assailed the capitol, deposed the cabinet and formed a new one and gave out that their demands must be complied with. Some of them go so far as to threaten a closer alliance with the United States, a consummation which can only be a question of time.

The recent outbreak among the Indians will probably hasten the transfer of the Indian bureau to the Department of War, where in our judgment it properly belongs. These wards of the Government will certainly be treated as humanely by the officers of the army as they are now treated, and the affairs of the bureau can be much more economically managed. In respect to money matters, the word "officer" in connection with the regular army has always been a synonym for honesty. It will be a sorry day for contractors and whisky dealers when this change is made.

Appaling accounts begin to reach us of the famine in India, which is rapidly extending. The dependency of Nepaul which comprises most of the southern slope of the Himalayan chain, is now almost entirely destitute of food. It contains over fifty thousand square miles of territory and is very populous.

THE PATENT RIGHT MONOPOLY.

A bill has been introduced into Congress, which, if it becomes a law, will make a radical change in the patent laws of the United States. It provides that any article which has been patented may be manufactured and sold by any person or corporation, by paying to the inventor or owner of the patent right a royalty of ten per cent upon the value of the article manufactured. For the protection of the owner of the patent right, the bill provides that the manufacturer shall give bond in the sum of $100,000, to be filed in the patent office at Washington, to properly account every six months for the royalty due and the payment of the same. The rights of parties are defined and protected by other provisions in the bill, and the act is also made applicable to copyrights. The measure was introduced by a western member who made a very able speech in its support. In this speech are grouped together many facts of general interest, showing the enormous profits that are realized by some of the owners of useful patent rights. The last census showed that there was invested in this country, in all classes of manufactures, the sum of $2,118,208,769. The annual cost of labor was $775,000,000, and the cost of materials used was $2,500,000,000. The aggregate value of manufactures was $4,232,000,000, leaving a net profit to the manufacturer of forty per cent. upon the capital employed.

The profit upon several kinds of business was given as follows: Tanning leather, 35 per cent.; manufacture of woolen goods 32; cotton goods 18; pig iron 20; patent medicines 118. India rubber goods are annually manufactured to the amount of $14,566,370, employing a capital of $7,486,660. There is paid out for wages two million five hundred and fifty-four thousand eight hundred and seventy-seven dollars, and for material seven million four hundred and thirty-four thousand seven hundred and ninety-two dollars, yielding a net profit to the manufacturer of nearly 60 per cent. These goods could be sold at two-thirds of the present prices and still yield a remunerative profit to the manufacturer. The sewing machine which has now become a necessity in almost every household in the country, pays a profit to the manufacturer of sixty-seven per cent. In one year and a half the capital invested in the manufacture of sewing machines, pays for all the labor and material used and also for the capital itself. The more common class of machines for which the wife of the farmer and mechanic is made to pay $65, pays a net profit to the manufacturer of $29. Where it is sold on time and interest is paid, the machine costs the buyer more than double what it costs the manufacturer to produce it. And these enormous profits often come out of poor women who are obliged to toil by the midnight lamp to pay them. The net profits of the business of manufacturing sewing machines in this country in 1871 was $14,683,933.

The manufacture of agricultural implements in 1870 employed a capital of $34,834,600, and purchased material amounting to $21,500,000. They paid out to their help $12,000,000 and realized a profit of 55 per cent. on the year's work. Nearly every implement which the farmer requires in his business is covered by a patent right, and in order to obtain it he must pay these enormous profits. It is really but little better than swindling.

It is not probable that farming, take one year with another, pays more than 5 or 6 per cent. on the capital invested, and often much less, a sum very disproportionate to that which the farmer is obliged to pay to monopolies for nearly every implement which he uses in doing his farm work.

If these profits were realized by inventers themselves, the extortion would not seem so great, but this has been the case in only a very few instances. Inventors generally die poor, and their services are rarely appreciated in their day of generation. Pinched by poverty, the inventor is often obliged to part with his valuable patent right for a mere bagatelle and the proceeds of his brain-work go to enrich others. The person who invented the copper toed boot sold his invention for $100, and when the patent expired, the same parties readily gave him $60,000 for the privilege of having it renewed.

It is true that it is better for farmers to purchase and use improved farming implements even at the present extortionate prices, than to farm it the old way, and the same is true of all labor saving machines. The sewing machine at double its present price would be a labor and money saving machine, when compared with the old method of stitching by hand, but if it could be purchased at a fair price it would be much more satisfactory, and could be afforded by many out of whose reach it now is. While we would deplore any action by Congress which would have a tendency to discourage invention, we think some measures should be taken to protect the consumer from the unjust demands of those who own the patent rights of useful and necessary articles.

On Tuesday several additional witnesses were examined, but no important evidence to sustain the charges of mismanagement was brought out. We have no means of knowing the character of the testimony yet to be given, but up to this time the case seems to be decidedly thin.

——Rev. B. Runyan, who was formerly pastor of the Baptist society at Eagleville, has dissolved his connection with that society and removed to Milesburg. He will preach in the Baptist Church at that place every Sunday in the morning, commencing at 11 o'clock, and in the evening at 7½. The Sunday School service is held in the morning, commencing at 9 o'clock.

Payment of the Constitutional Advertising.

——We find the following communication in the Harrisburg Patriot, and as it meets our views exactly we publish it. We think it will meet the views of every candid, honest man or legislator. The impossibility of adopting any equalizing process must be apparent to every one, and if the State is to be governed by the laws of their own making, we do not see how they can escape paying the papers at the same rates as they charge their local advertisers:

MR. EDITOR:—I see that the House hesitates to pass the resolution so promptly adopted by the Senate, authorizing the Secretary of the Commonwealth to adjust and settle the accounts of the newspaper publishers of the State for advertising the new Constitution. It seems a little singular that there should be such hesitation on the part of the House to pass a resolution which is simply intended to enable the Secretary of the Commonwealth to keep faith with the publishers That official authorized the proprietors of certain newspapers designated by him to publish the new Constitution as an advertisement once a week for four weeks at the rates charged by them for ordinary advertising. In other words they were to publish the new Constitution at the rates paid by private parties for the same space for the same length of time. The Secretary of the Commonwealth has also required the publishers in whose publications the new Constitution was advertised by his authority, to make out, under oath, statements of their accounts against the Commonwealth for advertising, at the rates charged to private individuals. Nearly all of them have complied. Those who have not will be obliged to do so before they can obtain payment. Of course there is great disparity in the amounts of the various bills. Scarcely any two newspapers have the same rates. They are governed, of necessity, in their charges of advertising, by their circulation. It cannot be expected that the Bungtown Bugle with three hundred of a circulation will be able to get as good rates for advertising as the Stokley Thunderer or the McClure Advocate with 15,000 each. Nevertheless, because this natural and necessary inequality of prices is shown by the bills presented to the Secretary of the Commonwealth, it is reported that certain members of the House are inclined to oppose the passage of the Senate resolution. They seem to think that they will be able to invent some equalizing process by which they can level up the Bungtown Bugle and level down the Stokley Thunderer and M'Clure Advocate. Gentlemen, it can't be done! If it could it would not be just that it should. The publishers are entitled to what the Commonwealth, through its proper officer, is pledged to pay them, viz: the rates charged by them for ordinary advertising. On this the publishers will insist. The sooner you conclude to pay, and to pay at those rates, the more it will be to your credit and to the honor of the Commonwealth. No other profession, trade or industry has suffered as much at the hands of the legislature as the guild of newspaper publishers. The price of labor is fixed by law for no other class of workers. The sum which the State doles out to the newspapers of the several counties for publishing the Mercantile Appraisers' list barely pays for the composition. In many counties the price for publishing legal notices is fixed by act of assembly at next to nothing. Is this enmity of the press to show itself anew in the opposition of the House to the passage of the Senate resolution relative to the payment of the Constitutional advertising? If so, the country press will perhaps have something to say in vindication of its rights.

A CCUNTRY PUBLISHER.

WE call attention to the election returns of the several districts of Centre county published on the inside of this week's issue. It will be seen that cutting and scratching was the order of the day, which seems to show that the parties did not always put in nomination the men that could command the vote of their neighbors for the positions which their friends endeavored to elevate them to. There may be some mistakes in the returns as published although great care has been taken to make them as perfect as possible; we shall be glad, however, to correct errors should our attention be called to them. J J. Packer, Esq., who has been elected Justice of the Peace in Curtin township, is represented as being a Democrat, which we are glad to inform our readers is a mistake, he being an active and reliable Republican. In Haines township, where the Democrats have all cast ninety majority, James P. Coburn, Esq., has been elected School Director by a large majority. In Penn township the contest for Constable waxed hot, there being five candidates in the field. It resulted, however, in the election of a Republican. We congratulate the good people of Penn on their choice. The greatest muddle seems to have been in Spring township, where the Republicans should have elected their entire ticket by from forty to fifty majority, but for some reason or other the Democrats succeeded in electing several candidates, one of whom—a Supervisor, we are informed—cannot read or write. We should judge, although he may be a good citizen, would make rather an awkward officer. In two or three instances ladies were candidates for School Directors, but in no case were they successful.—This would seem to indicate that our Centre county sovereigns are not as gallant as those of the eastern part of the State, where, in several instances, the ladies met with better success. We have instances of their success in Philadelphia and also in Chester county. We have also been informed since our inside was printed, that H. P. Trexiyulny was elected Justice of the Peace in Boggs township without opposition.—This gentleman is very popular, having served in this capacity for the last ten years.

—— On Tuesday a boy about sixteen years of age mounted on a good looking farm horse entered town and stopped at the Moshannon House, his horse being cared for at the hotel stable. The boy desired to sell the horse, and finally concluded a bargain with Mr. Wm. L. Harper, taking his note at thirty days for one hundred dollars. He then attempted to get cash upon the note, but Mr. Harper had put a provision in the 'promise to pay' which rendered it null if ownership of the horse should not prove to be vested in the seller. Of course the young man could not dispose of such paper, and soon returned to Mr. Harper, who, satisfied that something was wrong, delivered over the horse again and tore up the note. The same evening a farmer from Pine Grove Mills named D. H Weaver made his appearance and registered at the Lloyd House, his errand being to find the whereabouts of a boy and horse which had disappeared from his farm during his absence the day previous. A brief search ended in the discovery of the boy and the recovery of the horse. Mr. Weaver had gone from home on buisness on Monday and the boy, who worked for him, telling Mrs. Weaver that he was going to haul some wood, hitched up the horse and drove to the woods, where he left the sled, mounted the horse and drove to Port Matilda stopping over night and in the morning setting out for this place where he arrived, and where his experience was as above related. Mr. Weaver took the boy back with him, and, as he had previously been caught in minor thefts, he thinks of having him provided for in the house of refuge.—Journal.

——Ferguson came in yesterday to tell us about the Grangers. He says the initiation ceremonies are grand, gloomy and peculiar. He don't like to keep a secret and said if we'd keep it quiet he'd give us an insight. At the anteroom he was compelled to husk a shock of corn and make an estimate of the amount of pork it would produce when applied to the Berkshire breed. Then he was blindfolded and made to furnish the motive power of a wind-mill until they were satisfied he had a turn for agriculture. After that they laid him on his back and explained the use and application of the old-fashioned flail. This was nothing to the impressions made on him by the obligation of secrecy and allegiance: he will vote, hereafter, for no man who don't raise his own potatoes and sourkrout; who does not make his own soap and who cannot tell the difference between the fly and the weevil or who cannot eat dried-apple pie. The obligation forbids the purchase of shoe-blacking or railroad tickets. If he moves west he must be a free-trader, but members all east of the Alleghenies must be sound on the tariff question. If he owns a farm he is never to give a mortgage on the same without his wife's consent in writing. These are the principal points. The rest of the ceremony forcibly inculcates a system of agricultural morality, which is veiled in allegory and illustrated with cuts. A vision of the future is presented where the lion and sheep lie down together, and all the animals on the continent become domesticated and utilized and dwell in one fold in peace and unity; where coffee is three cents per pound and rye four dollars a bushel; horses and oxen will be driven side by side in dog-carts; eggs will rival pumpkins in periphery and bread-stuffs, like the sun, will daily rise the yeast and set behind the vest. Then will be the grangers millennium when

"The hickory berry vine entwines
The brown nut of the turnip tree;
The cashmere heifer skips and plays
To the tuneful blest of the feathery bee.
On tall boughs 'mid the buckwheat buds
We hear the low of the finny plover,
While the bay bull hitched to the rumbling scythe
Hooks out the golden clover.

—On Monday last Mr. Jacob Schler, of Tumbling run, Schuylkill county, was attacked by a pet bull, and gored so dreadfully that his recovery is not considered possible. His body was so mangled that the lungs were exposed and a portion of the intestines protruded.

——A Musical Convention is in successful operation at the present time at Zion. The melody was turned on last Saturday evening and has been kept up three times per day ever since and will close out in the usual form with a good concert on Saturday evening next. Zion is one of the best places for vocal music ever we heard of—in fact it has a wide spread reputation to that effect. Professor G. C. Curns, the West Branch Melodist, and Miss Josephine Ettinger, the accomplished organist, will no doubt be able to sustain their well earned reputation and give one of the best concerts ever held in the county.

——An extended notice of the death of Jacob Ort, the oldest man in this portion of the State, will appear next week.

Poetry.

TO WHO! TO WHO!

'Twas on a cold autumnal night,
A dismal one to view;
Dark clouds obscured fair Venus' light
And not a star appeared in sight,
As the thick forest through
Muggins—as usual—"blue"
Beat homeward 'tacking' left and right;
When all at once he "brought up" right
Against and old dead yew;
At which he 'rounded to,"
And "squaring off," as if to fight,
Said, with an oath I shan't indite,
"You infernal scoundrel you!
Light—an' I'll lick you, black or white!"
Just then above him flew
An owl, which on a branch did light
A few feet o'er the boozy wight,
And then commenced, "To-whoo—
Tu-whoh—tu-whoh—tu-whoo!"
Quoth Muggins, "Don't you think to fright
A fellow of my weight and height
With your Ter-whoo ter-whoo,
You cursed bugaboo!
An' if your Belzebub, its quite
On-necessary you should 'light—
For Muggins ain't your "due;"
For money matters are all right!
The Printer's paid up—honor bright!
Thereat the owl withdrew;
And Muggins mizzled too.
But there are other chaps who might
Be caught out some dismal night,
Who haven't paid what's due!
They know—To who—To who.

Our Story Teller.

AN OLD MAN'S DARLING.

Margery Hilton's fortune was made. So she congratulated herself as she gazed upon the diamond solitaire which but an hour before, Colonel Leslie had placed upon her finger. His words of love still vibrated in her ears, but, strange to say, there was no responsive melody in her heart, although her lips had promised that she would be his wife.

She was a young girl not yet out of her teens, poor, beautiful and ambitious. Colonel Leslie was fifty, hale, gentlemanly and rich. He had gone to the little manufacturing village of S—— upon business, had accidently met with Margery, and having been enraptured with her beauty, addressed her after a short acquaintance. And so, whilst he was rapidly being borne to his city home, thinking of the loveliness of the bride he had won, and his abundent means of making her happy, Margery sat in her chamber dreaming bright dreams to be realized in the future. Her fortune was made. What did it matter now if there had been poverty and privation in the past? Was not the future bright with wealth and splender?

"I shall have diamonds and laces and society to my heart's content," she mused, gazing from the window into the cloudless east, where the round rising moon looked softly into her glittering eyes. 'I shall purchase them dearly, perhaps, but then I shall be an "old man's darling." Colonel Leslie said so to-night as he placed the seal of our betrothal on my finger. It is true that there is a disparity of years between us, but I am satisfied with the contract I have made. I shall be 'clothed in purple and fine linen every day,' and if I am not happy, there is no one to blame but myself. I shall no longer be dependent upon those who grudge even the little morsel I eat.'

The wedding was a quiet one. The village had never seen a lovelier bride nor a happier groom, and when after a month's travel, the couple took possession of their luxurious home, Margery congratulated herself upon the brilliancy of her fortune. Her brightest dreams met with fulfillment. She entered into her new life with all the zest of her fresh young spirit, glorying in the beauty that had purchased her pleasures and leaving nothing undone that could enhance her loveliness.

Colonel Leslie accompanied her every where she wished to go.

'She is too young, too inexperienced for me to allow her freedom,' he said caressingly. 'She will doubtless tire of this frivolity after a while, and we will settle down in the happy home I have so often pictured to myself.'

But time wore on and not even a shadow of such weariness appeared to cloud the young wife's spirits. No gaiety was proposed which did not tempt her participation, and no temptation met with resistance.

After a year of patient waiting, the frivolities in which she indulged became so distasteful to him that he could not restrain his impatience. But friends interposed, declaring that the lovely Mrs. Leslie should not make a recluse of herself, and offering to accompany her wherever she wished to go. He transferred her, as it were, to their protection, and day after day and night after night he was left alone as mercilessly as though he had been but a hired attendant of the household.

Devoted as he had once been to his wife, the strength of his ardor began to abate, and beginning to believe that she had married him for his wealth, he determined to restrict her in her gayeties in a measure. He would make overtures to her reason and judgement, and if they failed he would assert the authority which centred in himself, and which she had so seemingly ignored.

He was in the library awaiting Margery's coming, as usual, upon the evening of the most brilliant entertainment of the season. An hour after midnight she entered, radient in velvet and diamond. He arose and offered to remove her wrappings.

'Thank you,' she returned icily, still standing, 'but I shall retire immediately, and there is no need of unwrapping here.'

'Just as you please,' he answered haughtily, resuming his seat and gazing for a moment at the beautiful face before him; 'but I have something to say to you which must be heard here and now.'

Margery gathered her cloak more closely about her shoulders, and resting both hands upon the back of the chair by which she was standing, said almost defiantly:

'If you have anything to say, please say it as quick as possible. I am tired and have need of a good rest; my demands for to-morrow are pressing.'

'And mine, Margery, you will find, are still more so. I have been trifled with, and my expressed desire neglected long enough. You will remember hereafter that I stand first in this household, and that my wishes are entitled to some consideration.

'Perhaps you had better explain,' she said contemptuously: 'I do not know that I have the honor of comprehending your remarks.'

'I shall certainly be more explicit, then,' he said, mildly, still determined not to appear irritated by her indifference. 'We have been married almost three years, Margery, and in all that time I have been but a slave to your bidding. It is true that I am more than twice your age, but I became your husband, fondly believing that in your love my heart would regain its youthfulness, and that you would find comfort and happpiness in being an old man's darling. That I have been disappointed I freely acknowledge; that you have, I can but infer. I realize the vanity of the hope which led me to unite old age with youth, since our tastes are so dissimilar. What I have to say to you, however, is this, that I desire you to relinquish in a measure, those frivolities which are separating us so surely and so utterly.'

Margery looked for a moment into his face, and said:

'Suppose I do not desire to renounce those pleasures, which you condemn so heartily?'

'Then I shall resort to authority which as your husband, is vested in me.'

'And if I do not choose to submit to that authority?'

'That is not a question to be discussed between us,' he exclaimed, emphatically, now thoroughly aroused and irate. 'I am master of this house, as you will find to your cost. That you have never cared for me except as the representative of the wealth which purchases your pleasure, is too plain a case to admit of argument. But there is one thing of which you may rest assured, whilst you bear my name it must remain as unsullied as when you received it. I do not wish you to regard me as a brute, nor yet as a tyrant, but this continued dissipation must cease. I am too old to be dragged from one scene of gayety to another, tied as it were, to the wheels of your triumphant chariot, and since I cannot attend you, you must confine yourself more at home. You can retire now if you please, but remember I expect compliance with my wishes.'

'Thank you for the privilege?' she returned sarcastically. 'I shall not retire, however, until this question is definately settled.' Her eyes glowed like mid night stars, and upon her white forehead beads of perspiration sparkled like diamonds in the full blaze of the chandelier, beneath which she stood.

'That I do not love you, Colonel Leslie you seem to be well aware. I married you because I was dazzled by those visions of splendor which you placed before my eyes, and I sighed for them as those who travel in the sandy deserts thirst for water. Fashion and society are my idols, and disconnected from them I would not turn over my hand to live another hour. I shall not give them up without a struggle you may rest assured, but the victory is not always with the strong. Good night!' she added, turning from him and leaving the room with the air of an empress.

Colonel Leslie, stunned and mortified by her confession, buried his face in his hands. This was the bitter ending of his pleasant dreams; this cold calculating woman; the wife who presided over his home.

'She shall have own way,' he suddenly, stoically resolved. 'If she married me, as she says, for my wealth, she shall not be cheated in the bargain. She shall enjoy her freedom unmolested while I live, and my wishes shall hereafter remain untold.'

Two—four years passed away, and then the end of it all came.

Margery was sitting alone in her elegant drawing room, whence an hundred guests had just departed, when Colonel Leslie entered hastily and drew a chair to her side. She gathered her trailing robes of amber satin more closely around her, as if fearing contamination.

He noticed this movement and exclaimed apologetically:

'I vowed years ago, Margery, that I never would again, by word or look, detract from your happiness, and faithfully until now I have kept that vow. This, however, is a perilous moment for both of us, and must account for this intrusion. I have a communication to make which will startle you, but you must hear it.

Are you listening? I am a bankrupt, Margery, a bankrupt!'

'A bankrupt!' she exclaimed, hoarsely. 'Are you in earnest?'

'Yes, in terrible earnest, as to-morrow's proceedings will show. I have not a dollar in the world which I can honestly call my own. For your sake I regret it You worship wealth and position you told me once, and I have never forgotten it. God knows I pity you.'

'What are we to do?' she asked brokenly, for, try as she might the tears would not be repressed.

I do not know,' he answered vaguely. 'The tidings reached me but a few hours ago and since then I have thought of nothing but how I should tell you without breaking your heart. I am not too old to work for you Margery; but how will you endure our misfortune? You will doubtless reproach me for not having provided against this contingency when we were married, but I did not know then that you sold yourself to me. I thought then you would love me a little, notwithstanding the disparity of years between us.'

He ceased speaking, and abruptly left the room.

For a moment Margery's heart softened towards him, but the next she rose up, and sweeping her eyes over the magnificent apartment, said bitterly:

'No, no, I cannot live without them.'

She ascended to her chamber, where her maid was awaiting her coming.—She wearily submitted herself to the skillful hands, and having substituted a morning wrapper for the pretty robes, she dismissed her sleepy attendant and sank into an easy chair which stood before the fire. She folded her white jeweled hands in her lap, and thought over the events of the past few years.

'What a vain profitless life I have lived!' she murmured regretfully. 'Who has been profited by it? Not even myself. And with the abundant means I have wasted, how much good I might have done. Have I, indeed, been happier than I was when I sat in my little chamber, the ornaments I possessed, a white rose for my hair, and my mother's old fashioned wedding ring for my finger?' And with her mother's memory came back a tenderness, a softness to the heart of Margery Leslie which had not visited it for years.

'It is not too late to retrieve myself, and I will,' she added resolutely. 'I cannot recall the past, but I can at least prove to my husband that I am not dead to all sense of honor and shame.'

Margery descended to the breakfast room a different person. The elements of true womanhood had so long slumbered in her breast that only the rudest shock could have aroused them. With their awakening came the conviction of her unworthiness, and determination to regain the esteem she had lost. Colonel Leslie was not present at the table, and to the servent who summoned him, he said:

'Excuse me to your mistress, and bring me a cup of coffee. I wish nothing else.'

'I will carry it to him myself,' said Margery, when she received the message, and in a few moments more she entered the library where he was sitting.

'Can I assist you?' she said softly, as she deposited the unique silver breakfast service at his side.

He had not noticed her presence before. He glanced hastily into her face and the tears stood in his eyes.

'I do not know whether you can or not,' he said almost wildly. 'My brain is in a whirl.' 'These papers,' pointing to the heaps upon his either hand, 'represent all I possessed. I have been here all night, Margery, and my conviction after a thorough investigation, is that we are beggars.'

'You must rest now,' she said gently, 'and when you have drank your coffee, we will talk about our misfortunes.'

Whilst he partook of his breakfast, she busied herself in arranging the disordered apartment. She turned off the gas which still burned brilliantly, and throwing aside the heavy curtains, admitted the sunlight into the room. Not until then did she observe the change that had taken place in her husband's appearance. He was worn and haggard, and his whole frame trembled as with ague. Margery sat down near him, and leaning her arms upon the table, looked into his face.

'You are easily discouraged, Colonel Leslie,' she said with emotion.

'I comprehend our situation much more clearly than you do,' he answered gloomily.

'Of the business details, I am of course ignorant,' she answered; 'but they do not alter or effect the fact which so intimately concerns us.'

'You realize it all then, and yet your heart is not broken!' he gasped, rather than asked.

'You refer to the conversation that passed between us years ago?' she inquired; the red flush mantling her cheek, and the tears gathering in her eyes.

'Yes. You told me that you would not care to live bereft of society and wealth. That remembrance has been the bitterest drop in this bitter, bitter cup.'

'Forget it!' she exclaimed passionately 'Forget that I was ever so unwomanly, so ungrateful. Our married life so far has proven a failure, but there is time enough to redeem it.'

Colonel Leslie could scarcely believe that he heard aright. 'You are not jesting with me, Margery?'

'Indeed, indeed I am not,' she exclaimed earnestly. 'Although I have proved recreant to the trust you once reposed in me, I am worthier to-day to be your wife than I was upon the bridal morning. If you will only esteem me again as you once did, you shall never regret it.

Colonel Leslie gathered her to his heart and pressed his lips to her forehead

'There is a light ahead for us, Margery,' he said, as soon as he could trust himself to speak. 'It is not at all so dark as it was awhile ago. I have education, talent, too, my friends used to say, and old as I am, they must be brought into requisition. In my early manhood, I read and practiced law, and a few months study will fit me for the profession again.

There were but a few thousand left of all Colonel Leslie's vast estate. But when Margery left the spacious residence which had been the scene of so many social triumphs, she felt but one sincere regret, and that was that so many opportunities for doing good had been wasted. Though the home she entered was humble in comparison, she realized that domestic contentment which otherwise she never would have known.

With the vigor and energy which had always been prominent traits in Colonel Leslie's character, he entered into his profession and became distinguished as a lawyer. Once in the right path Margery never faltered, and being constantly in the society of her husband, she learned to love him devotedly. Although today his hair is white with age, his form is still stately, and his step still firm whilst by his side, whether in his library peering over his ponderous books or in his parlor entertaining his friends, is the elegant form and beautiful face of Margery, 'the old man's darling.'

for almost all the daily casualties which occur in household, the workshop, or on the farm, as well as for many of the diseases which afflict humanity.

FOR BURNS AND SCALDS

It is invaluable, cooling and soothing the injured parts at once, and producing a perfect cure in a very short time, without leaving any scars. For this purpose alone, it is

A BLESSING TO THE WORLD,

FOR FROSTED LIMBS, COSMOLINE is fully as efficacious as for burns and scalds, restoring a healthy action to the injured parts very quickly. It is also the best possible remedy for Chilblains and Chapped Hands.

FOR RHEUMATISM especially Inflammatory, most forms of NEURALGIA, swelling of Limbs or Glands, COSMOLINE affords in the shortest possible time the

HAPPIEST RELIEF.

On CUTS AND BRUISES, the action of COSMOLINE is almost magical. If promptly applied, it prevents soreness, and the wounds heal very rapidly.

Dr. J. Walker's California Vinegar Bitters are a purely Vegetable preparation, made chiefly from the native herbs found on the lower ranges of the Sierra Nevada mountains of California, the medicinal properties of which are extracted therefrom without the use of Alcohol. The question is almost daily asked, "What is the cause of the unparalleled success of VINEGAR BITTERS?" Our answer is, that they remove the cause of disease, and the patient recovers his health. They are the great blood purifier and a life-giving principle, a perfect Renovator and Invigorator of the system. Never before in the history of the world has a medicine been compounded possessing the remarkable qualities of VINEGAR BITTERS in healing the sick of every disease man is heir to. They are a gentle Purgative as well as a Tonic, relieving Congestion or Inflammation of the Liver and Visceral Organs, in Bilious Diseases.

The properties of DR. WALKER'S VINEGAR BITTERS are Aperient, Diaphoretic, Carminative, Nutritious, Laxative, Diuretic, Sedative, Counter-Irritant, Sudorific, Alterative, and Anti-Bilious.

Grateful Thousands proclaim VINEGAR BITTERS the most wonderful Invigorant that ever sustained the sinking system.

No Person can take these Bitters according to directions, and remain long unwell, provided their bones are not destroyed by mineral poison or other means, and vital organs wasted beyond repair.

Bilious, Remittent, and Intermittent Fevers, which are so prevalent in the valleys of our great rivers throughout the United States, especially those of the Mississippi, Ohio, Missouri, Illinois, Tennessee, Cumberland, Arkansas, Red, Colorado, Brazos, Rio Grande, Pearl, Alabama, Mobile, Savannah, Roanoke, James, and many others, with their vast tributaries, throughout our entire country during the Summer and Autumn, and remarkably so during seasons of unusual heat and dryness, are invariably accompanied by extensive derangements of the stomach and liver, and other abdominal viscera. In their treatment, a purgative, exerting a powerful influence upon these various organs, is essentially necessary. There is no cathartic for the purpose equal to DR. J. WALKER'S VINEGAR BITTERS, as they will speedily remove the dark-colored viscid matter with which the bowels are loaded, at the same time stimulating the secretions of the liver, and generally restoring the healthy functions of the digestive organs.

Fortify the body against disease by purifying all its fluids with VINEGAR BITTERS. No epidemic can take hold of a system thus fore-armed.

Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Headache, Pain in the Shoulders, Coughs, Tightness of the Chest, Dizziness, Sour Eructations of the Stomach, Bad Taste in the Mouth, Bilious Attacks, Palpitation of the Heart, Inflammation of the Lungs, Pain in the region of the Kidneys, and a hundred other painful symptoms, are the offsprings of Dyspepsia. One bottle will prove a better guarantee of its merits than a lengthy advertisement.

Scrofula, or King's Evil, White Swellings, Ulcers, Erysipelas, Swelled Neck, Goitre, Scrofulous Inflammations, Indolent Inflammations, Mercurial affections, Old Sores, Eruptions of the Skin, Sore Eyes, etc. In these, as in all other constitutional Diseases, WALKER'S VINEGAR BITTERS have shown their great curative powers in the most obstinate and intractable cases.

For Inflammatory and Chronic Rheumatism, Gout, Bilious, Remittent and Intermittent Fevers, Diseases of the Blood, Liver, Kidneys and Bladder, these Bitters have no equal. Such Diseases are caused by Vitiated Blood.

Mechanical Diseases.—Persons engaged in Paints and Minerals, such as Plumbers, Type-setters, Gold-beaters and Miners, as they advance in life, are subject to paralysis of the Bowels. To guard against this, take a dose of WALKER'S VINEGAR BITTERS occasionally.

For Skin Diseases, Eruptions, Tetter, Salt-Rheum, Blotches, Spots, Pimples, Pustules, Boils, Carbuncles, Ringworms, Scald-head, Sore Eyes, Erysipelas, Itch, Scurfs, Discolorations of the Skin, Humors and Diseases of the Skin, of whatever name or nature, are literally dug up and carried out of the system in a short time by the use of these Bitters.

Pin, Tape, and other Worms, lurking in the system of so many thousands, are effectually destroyed and removed. No system of medicine, no vermifuges, no anthelmintics will free the system from worms like these Bitters.

For Female Complaints, in young or old, married or single, at the dawn of womanhood, or the turn of life, these Tonic Bitters display so decided an influence that improvement is soon perceptible.

Cleanse the Vitiated Blood whenever you find its impurities bursting through the skin in Pimples, Eruptions, or Sores; cleanse it when you find it obstructed and sluggish in the veins; cleanse it when it is foul; your feelings will tell you when. Keep the blood pure, and the health of the system will follow.

MR EDITOR :—I am not "King William of Cheapside. I am not in the coal business and therefore not a rival of the two Knaves, one of whom is pleased to call himself the "Knight of Sunny Side," in the columns of last week's Watchman. So, leaving the writer of this out, the new little game of "depot" seems to have narrowed down to a contest between the two "Knaves" and a "King," the latter of whom is sure to win in due time. I do not want to injure the "Knight of Sunny Side," as he is pleased to call himself, nor do I care to defend the "King." I have no ambition to do either. The "King" may write and think as he pleases, and the "Knight" may lay aside his dignity (?) and stoop to buffoonery and cant if he likes. My business in my last communication, and my object in this one, was and is to show that there are some interests in Bellefonte that will not allow the freight depot to be built in Spring township. The "Knight" in both his communications has used all his talen to show cause why the depot should be built on his swamp. I tried to show that the interests of this community demanded that the depot should remain as it is, or if a new one should be built, that it should be placed within our borough limits. A petition signed by a few merchants and tricksters does not mean the whole people of Bellefonte. The majority of business men and taxpayers do not want such an unheard-of hoax praticed upon them. Shall all business interests and conveniences that a freight depot makes be sacrificed in order that one man may be benefitted by having the Railroad Company fill up and build a depot in his frog pond?

If his frog pond lay within the borough and was at all suitable, I would be glad to see the "Knight" made happy in selling a section of it for a depot site if he could find a Railroad man who was fool enough to buy it. In fact, to please him, it would be better, since his heart is set on it, to present him with a little depot on wheels for him to play with. I am led to this suggestion from the fact that he has acted so much like a baby.—In his last "C. T.," he says that if the depot be built in Spring township a bridge leading thereto would also have to be built in Spring twp. This is not correct, for the only available place for a bridge near the proposed site is within the borough limits. Let any one who doubts this statement examine the locality for himself and he will be convinced of its truthfulness.

It is really amusing to see the attempt of this self-constituted "Knight" in trying to accomplish two points in his last "C. T." First—to mislead the public as to my motive in stating the objections to building the depot on his pond. You, Mr. Editor, and others come in for a share of his ribaldry, it being about the only defense he could make. The second is his attempt to make the public believe that he is not the author of his own communication, that he did not write what else but himself did write.—This denial does not sound strange to me, for I never heard him charged with being truthful or honest since he graduated with "pinchers" and "roosters." I could call witnesses to prove that the 'Knight' and his big brother Jim, were furnished with a proof sheet to correct, when the gentleman whom they desire to annihilate stepped into the Watchman office the evening before the article appeared in that paper. They were so taken by surprise that they left without an advance copy. While he was reading and correcting his own composition he remarked that somebody was "going for" him on the depot question and that he was only looking it over!! A few moments afterwards a compositor stepped up the Knight and asked him if he had corrected the revise? to which he made an affirmative reply. He is pleased to write that the gentleman whom he is "going for," "lives and grows fat on strife. Far better live on strife than upon pelf.

"Thus Gods' contended—noble strife.
Who most should ease the wants of life."

I leave your readers to judge for themselves, whether a man who will thus wilfully attempt to deceive the public in the greater portion of his article, is worthy of belief in the remainder of the same.

DEFAULTING TAX COLLECTORS.

MR EDITOR :—By reference to the Auditor's Report in another column of your valuable paper, it will be found that a large amount of money which belongs to the county still remains in the hands of defaulting tax collectors, and as a tax-payer I trust you will allow me a small space in your columns for the expression of my views on the subject.

It may be deemed by some of your readers, and especially those interested, that "defaulting" is rather a strong term to use in this connection, but if either of the parties now holding in their possession sums of money varying from $10 to $500, which I have reason to believe have been collected, and which belong to the county, were to employ agents to collect money for them they would hold them responsible as defaulters long before nine years had elapsed after the money was collected. I propose only to refer to those parties who have not settled with the county since 1869, and to place the facts more directly before your readers, and ask, is there no way to bring them to terms?

The first on the list is Martin Murphy of Burnside, $176.32, and Simon Lingle, of Liberty, $242.22, both of which sums have been due the county since 1865, nine years. Since 1867, S. F. Ishler, Benner, $10.04; 1868, Wm. Askey, Philipsburg, $95.48, John Pownell, Boggs, $157.60; Jacob Hosterman, Haines, $447.38; William Cross, Half Moon, $58.94; 1869, D. F. Fortney, Bellefonte, $490.78; J. M. Bush, Patton, $75.98; D. Hosterman, Haines, $223.03, making a total of $2.033 92.

During all these years the county has been borrowing money and paying various rates of interest, and it is but reasonal to suppose that these several sums of money in the hands of collectors, would have been worth legal rates of interest to the county. Is it more than just then, Mr. Editor, that these parties pay at once into the county treasury, the principals and the interest that would have accrued? I do not know that any more than the principals could be enforced, but to show your readers the saving the payment of these sums when due would have been to the county, I have cast up the interest and the following is the result :

|---|---|
| Martin Murphy, Burnside | $187 40 |
| Simon Lingle, Liberty | 394 81 |
| S F Ishler, Benner | 14 95 |
| Wm Askey, Burnside | 79 73 |
| A Jones, Philipsburg | 135 58 |
| John Pownell, Boggs | 223 79 |
| Jacob Hosterman, Haines | 634 67 |
| Wm Cross, Half Moon | 83 69 |
| D F Fortney, Bellefonte | 662 55 |
| J M Bush, Patton | 102 67 |
| D Hosterman, Haines | 301 09 |
| Total | $2.920 73 |

It will be seen by these figures that the county is the loser, provided all the sums standing opposite their names in the Auditor's Report were paid at once by the defaulters, the sum of $886.81, provided the Commissioners always borrowed money at 7 per cent, which they have not done. At the last term of Court they borrowed something like $3.000 at 9 per cent. Now, how long must this robbery continue? Is there no remedy? As there seems to be a disposition among the present Board of Commissioners to stop the leaks in the County Treasury, I hope this will be one of the first reformatory measures taken in hand and prosecuted to a successful end. I am well aware that within the last nine years the Commissioners have been very exacting towards certain collectors, and I can see no reason why the same promptness should not be required from all. I am also aware that the collectors have been very industrious in getting the money into their hands and it is time that the tax-payers should demand these middle-men between them and the County Treasury be made to do their duty or suffer the penalty for their criminal offence.

TAX-PAYER FROM LIBERTY.

——At the last meeting of the Unionville Temperance Society, on Saturday evening, an essay was read by Miss Hannah Thompson of that place. We are sorry we could not get it for publication as it is really one of the neatest and most complete productions the subject has ever called forth. Miss Thompson is well known in this county as a teacher of excellent qualities, and a lady possessed of ability and accomplishments of a rare order.

——Welch & Co's book store will be removed in a few days to the stone block adjoining the First National Bank. His constantly increasing business has driven him to find larger and more convenient quarters. His new store will be the best in the county.

What Has Become of the Centre County "Local Option Association?"

MESSRS. EDITORS:—An article by "Reformation" in your last issue asks the above question among others, in reply to which I will simply refer "Reformation" to the records of the Court of Quarter Sessions of this county, by which it will be seen that, without an exception, every return for the violation of the Liquor laws committed to the charge of the committee of the above "association," has been prosecuted to conviction. There has not been a single failure either to indict or convict.

This result is due in part to the fact that prosecutions have not been encouraged, except when the evidence of guilt was conclusive and overwhelming. So well is this now understood, that at the last session of court every violator plead guilty and submitted his case to the court.

Every solid reform carries with it every facility of teaching its subjects to avoid crime as well as to punish the guilty, and it is not until this principle is fairly understood that permanent success will be given, and with what persistency this must be carried out to be effective is perhaps well known to "Reformation."

The Local Option Association is to be judged upon facts and not fancies; its merits should be judged by the fruits it brings forth, and not by the noise it makes. Men should not expect too much, but view with candor and encourage with faithful persistency every effort to effect good.

This is what the Local Option Association has done. What has "Reformation" done? If Madame Rumor can be relied upon he may be able to find a case near home. I fear he is one of those who bind heavy burdens upon others' shoulders, but himself will not touch them with one of his fingers.

ONWARD.

THE POPULATION OF BELLEFONTE.—A dialogue on the cars between Milesburg and Bellefonte.

Stranger—Can you tell me the population of Bellefonte.

Citizen—Not exactly, I am only a renter there a short time and havn't learned the exact number. I was somewhat amused, though the other day in conversation with a neighbor on that subject, he said: "If you include the cattle and swine, the cows, bulls, bullocks, calves, hogs and pigs running loose in the streets, the population of Bellefonte might run up to (6000) six thousand or so.

S.—What! do they allow cattle to run in the streets in Bellefonte?

C.—Yes, sir, it's a fact, as you will very likely discover before we reach the depot.

S.—Why, from all I have heard about Bellefonte, I have considered it a model town.

C.—So it is a model in some respects. I love to speak well of Bellefonte, but I am as indignant as many of my neighbors are about the cattle nuisance.

S.—I should not suppose that your first-class citizens would tolerate such a nuisance.

C.—Why, sir, you can see our first-class ladies, almost any day, stepping out into the mud and giving up the entire sidewalk to quadrupeds.

Here the train stopped, and the dialogue ended

Let the People Speak.

MANHATTAN, Kan., April 8, 1873.
R. V. PIERCE, Buffalo, N. Y.:
Dear Sir.—Your Favorite Prescription has done my wife a world of good. She has taken nearly two bottles and has felt better the past two weeks than at any time in the past two years. No more periodical pains; none of that aching back or dragging sensation in her stomach she had been accustomed to for several years. I have so much confidence in it that I would be perfectly willing to warrant to certain customers of ours who would be glad to get hold of relief at any expense. I have tried many Patent Medicines, but never had any occasions to extol one before.

Very truly yours,
GEORGE B. WHITING.

MARY ANN FRISBIE, Lehman, Pa, writes, May 29, 1872:

Philadelphia Market Report.

MONDAY, MAR. 2, 1874.

CLOVERSEED comes forward freely, but a great portion of it is of inferior and undesirable quality. Sales of 300 bus common quality at 7¼a8c; fair Pennsylvania at 8½a9 3-4c, and choice Western at 9¼a9¾c. TIMOTHY cannot be quoted over $3,15. The market is bare of FLAXSEED, and it is wanted at $2.25.

In the Breadstuff market there is a very inactive state of affairs, and for FLOUR the demand is almost exclusively for small lots to meet the wants of the local consumers, although there is some export demand for the low grades.

The foreign advices this morning record a decline of 1d in Spring grades of WHEAT in Liverpool but the fact that several cargoes afloat on the coast have been purchased for the Continent caused a firmer feeling there, and the news has had no perceptible effect here. The market remains dull. Sales of 400 bus Western Red at $1,65; 800 bus Pennsylvania and Western Amber at $1,72; small lots of White at $1,78 a1.85; 400 bus fancy do do at $1,56, and 800 bus White Spring at $1,55.

RYE is steady at 80c, but the sales are unimportant.

New York Market.

MONDAY, March 2, 1874.

GRAIN—Since our last weekly review of the Wheat market we have had to note a marked decline, and at times much depression has prevailed, the more liberal arrivals, less favorable advises from Europe, reduced limits to shippers' orders, an absence of steamer room, and much larger arrivals, have been the chief causes of the unfavorable change in the market. The advices from Europe have disappointed the trade, a better market at Liverpool was confidently looked for ere the close of February, and higher limits for Spring Wheat were anticipated. Our letters from Liverpool and London express the opinion that this country can supply them with nearly all the Wheat they require to carry them to the next harvest, and there is evidently less desire to purchase freely at our reduced figures. A London letter from an old and valued correspondent expresses the opinion that our Government estimate of our last Wheat crop was very far below the truth, and thinks our estimate, which was 22,000,000 bush. in excess of the Government figures, was far more accurate and probably as near the truth as could be arrived at. Few people in this country or in Europe have anything like a correct idea of the growth of the West; it is so rapid that far more time should be devoted to it by our Government agents to furnish anything like correct estimates of the area under the various grain crops, to give their statements any real value, such as our merchants could base an opinion upon. From the West the reports are generally favorable for the growing crop, but injury to the Winter Wheat is more to be apprehended in March than during any other month in the year; the rapid decline on the seaboard has greatly checked the movement, as farmers will not sell to any extent to correspond to the decline here. Many holders have preferred to store freely rather than accept the prices offered, and we have added somewhat to our stock. In Winter Wheat not enough has been done to establish values; the supply of it is very moderate, and holders are not inclined to press its sale. The decline in Spring on Thursday was 6a7c.—Tribune.

UMBRELLATIVES BY MARRIAGE.

The wind was damp with coming wet
When James and blue-eyed Lizzie met;
He held a gingham o'er his head,
And to the maiden thus he said:

"Oh lovely girl, my heart's afire
With love's unquenchable desire;
Say, dearest one, wilt thou be mine,
And join me in the grocery line!"

The maid, in accents sweet, replied;
"Jim, hold the umbrella more my side;
My bran new bonnet's gittin' wet—
I'd marry yer, yer needn't fret."

Association among Farmers.

While thinking of the magnitude of the agricultural resources in this state and the vast income to be derived therefrom if properly managed, the question arises; why is it that that portion of our population who are engaged as tillers of the soil, and who hold in their hands the power of developing these resources are not more united in their cause? The farmers of Pennsylvania and more especially those who are not able to employ hired help, seem to be satisfied with their isolated condition. Now cannot something be done to rouse them to a sense of their duty towards themselves and their fellow men? Cannot they be made to understand that upon them depends the disclosure of these mines of agricultural wealth. Now will not concerted action among them tend to bring about the desired result? Merchants and other business men have their Boards of Trade and in fact all professions are combined together to advance their common interests.

I am aware that an effort is now being made to unite the farmers of our state and bring order out of a chaotic state of affairs, and I appeal to the farmers of Pennsylvania to organize themselves together and do something. Let every town have its Farmers' Club, and then devise something for their mutual benefit; any undertaking, whether for the purpose of improving their farm stock, for buying agricultural implements, or for providing themselves with family stores, will prove of advantage to them. In some localities they are combining for the purpose of Associated Dairying and this is one step in the right direction; improvement of farm stock is another; but these are confined to favored localities. We want it wide spread over our State. We have far too much inferior stock and mixed breeds. In the matter of procuring our family stores and supplies, thousands upon thousands of dollars can be annually saved One obstacle in the way of combination is that they will not place that confidence in each other as do men of other professions. Perhaps one reason of this is, that not having such a general knowledge of the world as have those of more extended business relations, they are more easily duped by venders of patent rights and others, and thus it makes them naturally suspicious of strangers and of each other. Now in all our relations in life, we are more or less obliged to place confidence in other people and the fact that a person will betray the confidence of one, sooner than he will of many, should convince us more than ever, that in "union there is strength." We need to bring the producer and consumer in direct relation with each other, and in order to accomplish this, let combination be the text, and let able writers write such sermons from it, that it will infuse into the farmers of Pennsylvania and others, a spirit of activity and zeal, so that associations of some kind will be as numerous as the towns in our state. ### Plaster as a Manure.

There seems to be little doubt but what plaster, or as it is called by chemists, sulphate of lime, is on some soils an efficient and cheap manure; while on other soils it seems to be of little or no value, as no difference can be detected in the crops following its use.

Now in order to tell the soil on which it will pay to use it, is a question that we shall have to decide for ourselves; for I am not aware that any man can tell by looking at the soil, where it will pay to use it, or where it will not pay. Therefore, if we would know for a certainty, it is best to try small quantities on different parts of the field; either by sowing on grass lands or as a top dressing, or by using as a manure for field crops in different ways, and the answer that you may get will likely be a true one. After you have found where it will pay, then use it liberally, and it may be well to say here that if the crops are all consumed upon the farm, there need be no fears of ruining your farm by using plaster in a judicious manner.

Gypsum—How does it Act?

This question seems to be a hard one to solve, and in fact has never been answered satisfactorily either by agriculturists or chemists, so far as I can learn. Mr. W. T. Early of Virginia, writes under this head, and as it seems to be sound, I will quote some of his ideas. "It is said by a distinguished professor that it is food for plants, or manure. This cannot be true, for generally when applied to land about seventy pounds or a bushel to the acre is found to be sufficient for all purposes and over that amount is a waste of material." By some, it is said that it acts upon the soil mechanically. "This is obviously a mistake, as, everything else being equal, it acts in the same manner upon all soils, the light, loamy, stiff, clayey, sandy or rocky, being equally and in like degree affected by it. And the quantity used, a bushel per acre is too small to have any appreciable mechanical effect upon the soil."

"Others claim that it acts only as a constituent of plants. This cannot be true, because if it were so, much more than a bushel per acre might profitably be used, as it is perfectly obvious that common manure, bone dusts, and guanos of all kinds, can be used to any extent almost, with results corresponding to amounts used, while in case of plaster, no appreciable results follow beyond a certain quantity."

"Some say it is simply a stimulent of vegetation. This explanation will not do; because there is no doubt plaster permanently improves the soil, if the vegetation produced by it is not removed from the land." The most reasonble answer seems to be that it acts as a condenser, both of ammonia of the atmosphere, and of the soil, and that it holds this most subtle and powerful manure in its grasp fixes it, and gives it up to the growth of plants, as they require it instead of allowing it to pass away. Here are a few words that seem to establish this theory: "If you sow plaster on a heap of manure, steaming and giving off ammonia, it will stop the escape of the gas, until the plaster becomes saturated, and then it will begin to escape again; sow again and it will stop, and so on until all the ammonia is taken up and fixed." And another proof of this is in the fact of its great deodorizing powers. Take Peruvian guano, whose great fertilizing property is ammonia, mix plaster with it in a proper quantity, and it will be inodorous. And so it will be with other manures, either animal or vegetable, which gives off ammonia. It is said that ammonia is the richest portion of all manures, and if plaster will prevent the escape of it we may use it in this direction with a certainty.

Farmers ought to Live Better.

Now it is a fact, notwithstanding most of the luxuries, and that which goes to make up a good living, passes through their hands, that farmers as a class are the poorest fed of any. We all understand the difference between a well fed animal and one poorly kept. Does the quality of food have any less effect on the human system? Hence, I say farmers cannot afford to live poor. I noticed one great mistake among farmers this fall. There has been a large amount of poultry raised this season; none too much however, if it had been properly marketed after having kept a proper amount for home consumption; but most farmers have kept every turkey and chicken until Thanksgiving, then thrust it all upon the market at once.

The result was they found themselves selling poultry at ten cents a pound many not even sparing any for their own Thanksgiving dinner. Now would it not be vastly better to have marketed say one half the actual amount and realized a fair profit on it. Then if the other half was more than the family required, to have disposed of it occasionally as the market demanded. I know that with those who have raised quite an amount of poultry it has been feed, feed, feed. But after poultry once gets its growth and is in good flesh, a small quantity of grain will suffice to keep it so Then a considerable amount can be profitably disposed of in a family of half a dozen. Let your salt pork rest in the barrel where it will keep, and place a large sized turkey across your table once a week. It is one of the most healthful kinds of meat and will sometimes cure a family of large boys of the western fever, for it is a fact that nothing goes further toward making people contented than good living.

Once more; farmers ought to be more industrious. I know with some this is not the case, but many who call themselves hard working men, fail to occupy their full time profitably. I do not contend that farmers should spend every hour at hard manuel labor, but they cannot afford to spend much of their time sitting around the stove in the country store, hearing each other confess their neighbor's faults or talking of hard times. Though the present financial grip effects all classes, we think the farmer suffers as little from it as any one, and if he will only attend to his business with industry and perseverence he will work his way over this hard spot.

Howard Feb. 28th. S. S.

Duration of Timber.

It is a curious fact, and one of great practical importance in structural science, that in the salt mines of Poland and Hungary the galleries are supported by wooden pillars, which are found to last unimpaired for ages, in consequence of being impregnated with the salt, while pillars of brick and stone, used for the same purpose, crumble away in a short time by the decay of their mortar. It is also found that wooden piles, driven into the mud of salt flats and marshes, last for an unlimited time, and are used for the foundation of brick and stone edifices; and the practice of docking timber, by immersing it for some time in sea water, after it has been seasoned, is generally admitted to promote its durability. There are some experiments which appear to show that, after the dry rot has commenced, immersion in salt water effectually arrests its progress, and preserves the remainder of the timber. If care be taken to renew the coat of paint as often as it decays, wood on the outside of the buildings may be made to last for centuries; paint, however, is no perservative against the internal or dry rot, notwithstanding the opinion so generally prevalant to the contrary.

Cooked Meat for Fowls.—Fowls, as well as dogs, become quarrelsome if fed on raw meat. Besides, cooking makes it more nutritious. When raw it is rather harsh and crude, compared with the mild natural diet of worms and grubs, which are for the most part soft and easily dissolved by digestion. Occasionally, for variety, a little meat may be given raw. Fish, when plenty, is more conveniently given boiled, because in that state the fowls easily pick every morsel from the bones, and no mincing is required. Chandler's scraps have the advantage of being already cooked, and on that account, as well as many others, they are excellent.

PAPA, STAY HOME. I'M MOTHERLESS NOW.

Angels have hung out their lamps in the sky,
Evening has shadowed the brow of the day;
Papa, come sit down and answer me why
Death called my beautiful mother away!
When her sweet darling beside her they led,
How I remember she looked up and smiled!
Softly she called you unto her and said:
"Promise you'll cherish and care for your child!"

Many a night have poor mother and me
Sat by the window, and watched the gate,
Weeping she'd ask me, "Oh where can he be?
What can be keeping your papa so late?"
Weary with watching, she kissed me and said
Just like an angel, so pleasant and mild—
"I'll watch and I'll wait, darling, go to your bed:"
Then she would pray for both you and her child!

Papa, stay home, please do not leave me to-night!
Think of dear mamma, in prayer let me bow,
Asking "our Father" to guide you aright!
Papa, remember I'm motherless now!
Kneel down with me, papa, come, let us pray,
Mother, oh, smile as in life you once smiled!
Father in Heaven, show papa the way,
He may go home with his motherless child!

MORAL AND RELIGIOUS.

"New Every Morning."

How many bright things there are in the book of Lamentations! It has a sad title, and in our happy moods we should hardly think of turning its leaves. Our instinct would be to go to it in our grief, to find suitable utterances in our burdened hours. We open to its lines as those who walk under a weeping sky and beneath the rain of falling tears. But our walk will often, as we look up, show us a rift in the clouds, and the blue sky shining through, the blessed sunshine streaming down. Here is an utterance that has the sunbeams in it: "The Lord's mercies are new every morning." What an assurance this is to carry with us in all our wayfaring through the world.

The future is always dark to us. The shadows brood it. A veil hides it from our sight. What is under the shadows, what is behind the veil, what is advancing to meet us out of the impervious mist, none of us can know. Nor need we care to know We have no anxious questions to ask. This is enough for all that is coming,—"The Lord's mercies are new every morning."

Fashions.

—All the signs at present are in favor of the continued supremacy of the simple, charming designs introduced during the past year. The narrow skirts long, or carefully guarded for the street, laid flat at the sides and in front, and only exhibiting just enough of tournure to make them graceful, are still in vogue; and by extremists are exaggerated into robes which forcibly recall the dresses of Josephine, and those historical portraits of the first empire, which have furnished so much of interest and suggestion to later times. Of course, styles which reproduce historical epochs, and make the wearers look as if they had stepped out from a frame at the Louvre, or an ancestral picture gallery, will not become common, but they sustain the general tendency to certain restricted designs, and preserve the modern idea of close trailing drapery as the perfection of elegance and style.

—A very new and dressy effect is produced in costume bonnets, by lining brim, curtain, plaiting, or whatever shows a reverse side, with a contrasting color, matching the under side of the reversable ribbons used for trimming.

—The blouse patterns for boys, belted, in and crossed over, the Gabrielle, for girls, looped up and belted in, with small side pocket, over striped cambric, percale, or alpaca skirts, are the patterns required by thrifty mothers, who are already busy in anticipation of the coming summer.

TO THE CITIZENS OF PENNSYLVANIA.—Your attention is specially invited to the fact that the National Banks are now prepared to receive subscription to the Capital Stock of the Centennial Board of Finance. The funds realized from this source are to be employed in the erection of the buildings for the International Exhibition, and the expenses connected with the same. It is confidently believed that the Keystone State will be represented by the name of every citizen alive to patriotic commemoration of the one hundred birth-day of the nation. The shares of stock are offered for $10 each, and subscribers will recieve a handsomely steel engraved Certificate of Stock, suitable for framing and preservation as a national memorial.
Interest at the rate of six per cent per annum will be paid on all payments of Centenial Stock from date of payment to January 1, 1876.
Subscribers who are not near a National Bank can remit a check or post-office order to the undersigned.
FREDK. FARLEY, Treasurer.

Bellefonte and County.

——A Methodist revival is progress at Centre Line.

——They have a Curtain Literary club in Millheim.

——Sunday, the first day of Spring was a charming day.

——The Mechanic's Hall at Millheim is under way and will soon be completed.

——Occasionally a young, precocious-looking "flitting" rattles along the streets.

——Elder W. J. Mitchell will preach at Mount Eagle in the evening and on Sabbath 7th and 8th instant.

——Representative Orvis is hereby thanked for copies of Old Berger's Journal and other printed matter.

——With a religious enthusiasm, worthy of the example of all conscientious people, our umbrella keeps lent.

——The Watchman is in agonies because the potato bug is coming again. That paper is always struggling with something weighty.

——Sleighing was pretty good in this place on last Wednesday and Thursday. This fact is chronicled for the benefit of our foreign readers.

——A little son of Isaac Haupt used a cutting machine last week for the purpose of amputating the end of a finger. He is still living.

——The temperance crusade rages in Williamsport, but the dip of the rock don't even extend to Lock Haven. Will Bellefonte be purged?

— On another page of this paper will be found a full and correct list of the township officers elected in this county at the last election.

——Prof. R. M. Magee, County Superintendent, will please accept our thanks for a copy of the Report of Common Schools of Pennsylvania for the year 1873.

——For Burns and Scalds COSMOLINE exceeds any other remedy. It allays the acute pain in a very short time, and always produces a rapid cure without leaving any scars.

——Last week, Messrs. Shortlidge & Co. were awarded the contract of furnishing 50,000 bushels of lime, to be used in building the new Insane Asylum, at Warren, Pa.

——We are informed that Madisonburgers are rather romantic in school matters. One school is held in a vacant store room and another in what was once the sitting room of a hotel.

——Prof. George Hageman and Mr. John Colvert, of Lock Haven, were among the visitors to Bellefonte Saturday. The former was looking out for a wife, and the latter for something good to eat.

——Michael Myers requested the Watchman to call us a liar for him. Why didn't Michael step across the street and say that to us in his propria persona? Had he done so nobody would have been hurt.

FOR RENT.—A pleasant house of six rooms, situate in Colesville, near Bellefonte. House newly painted and in good order. Rent reasonable and taxes paid by owner. Apply to 7—3t. DANIEL RHOADS, Bellefonte.

——A marvelous combination of economy, taste, beauty, sentiment and artistic merit! A Year's Subscription to DEMOREST'S MONTHLY MAGAZINE, and the large and beautiful oil Chrome, "The Old Oaken Bucket," presented as a premium. See the annoucement in another column.

——As the season for Public Sales is now at hand, we report the sale of farm stock of Joseph Hoy, Marion twp. on Saturday last as follows: One horse sold for $200, one brood mare with foal, $200, two two-year old colts, $100 each. Cows sold from $28 to $30 and $35.—Farming utensils sold low.

——The Royal Imperial Prussian Band will give two entertainments in Reynold's Hall on Saturday and Monday evenings. We assure the public that this will be a choice and rare entertainment. The band has appeared to crowded houses in many of the eastern cities and have won the highest praise. It is strictly a first-class entertainment.

THE GRAND COMMANDERY MEETING. On the 12th of May next the Grand Commandery of Knights Templar of Pennsylvania will meet in this place. Constans Commandery is already making elaborate arrangements for the reception of their guests. It is expected, as all the subordinate commanderies in the state in addition to the Grand Commandery have been invited, that our town will be crowded to its utmost capacity. The hotels have promised to make the most complete arrangements for their entertainment, and a large proportion of our citizens have kindly offered to open their houses to accommodate those who cannot find room at the hotels. Bellefonte being so centrally located it is probable that a larger number of the brotherhood will be in attendance than at any previous annual conclave for years. At Meadville and Reading there were over a thousand uniforms in the line of parade, while at Williamsport there were over three thousand. Should half that number attend the meeting in May next, it would be no easy task to find sleeping room for them. Be this as it may, our resident commandery has undertaken to provide for them, and none need doubt their ability to do it. The circular issued by Grand Commander Weidman, fixes the date of the first meeting for Tuesday evening, May 12. Wednesday will be devoted to the transaction of business, and on Thursday the inspection and parade of the subordinate commanderies and public instalation of grand officers will take place. This will be the interesting feature of the occasion. It is earnestly hoped that our citizens generally will unite in making the visit of the Grand Commandery a pleasant one. At Williamsport and Reading the principal thoroughfares and public buildings were handsomely decorated, while at Meadville the city authorities united with the citizens in brushing up and decorating the thoroughfares. Bellefonte's good name for hospitality, as well as for her natural attractions and native beauty, must be maintained in May next. We hope our borough authorities will place the streets in a proper condition, and we don't besitate to intimate that it will require considerable labor and expense to do this properly. But it should be done and we have no doubt that they will do it and do it well. Our principal streets and public buildings should wear a holiday appearance. We have no fears, however, that our patriotic people will not prove themselves as hospitable, or that our town will not appear to as good advantage as any that the Grand Commandery of Pennsylvania has ever honored with its presence.

LEWISBURG, CENTRE & SPRUCE CREEK R. R.—We have, quite recently, been shown papers, which have been sent here by parties in Philadelphia who are interested in this road, asking those who own springs or water rights above our town, along the foot of Tussey mountain, to give the company the use of so much of said water as might be necessary for a water station at Boalsburg, and also asking those through whose property the pipes would have to pass, the permission to lay such pipes. This looks as if the railroad authorities were at last in earnest in this matter. We think there is no part of our State that needs such an improvement more than Pennsvalley. New discoveries of iron ore are being made along the railroad. One party in our vicinity are hauling their ore to Bellefonte on wagons (eleven miles), which hauling alone costs about five dollars per ton, and this same ore can be delivered on the cars when our road is completed, at a cost for hauling of less than one dollar per ton. There are also millions of feet of lumber in the mountains south of Boalsburg, owned by Mr. Underwood, which only await the completion of this road to bring it into market. Mr. Underwood has already erected a steam saw mill in the mountains, and has to haul his lumber to Milroy, which is too expensive to be as profitable as it should be. Our valley has also inexhaustable beds of lime stone, which will become very valuable as soon as coal can be had without hauling it so far on wagons, and besides all this we have one of the best agricultural districts in the State, and nothing remains to make us a prosperous people except the Lewisburg, Centre & Spruce Creek railroad. J. T. S.

——Rev. ——— was teaching his bible class of young ladies a few Sabbaths ago, when the Egyptian plagues were the theme. Each plague was discussed and each one pointed a moral. When the plague of the lice was reached, the teacher inquired what effect, they supposed, that plague would have in Pharaoh's Kingdom, when one of the artless young ladies innocently suggested that she thought it would raise the price of fine-tooth combs.

——Hon. John B. Linn, Deputy secretary of State and our candidate for Secretary of Internal affairs, arrived home on Saturday last and returned to Harrisburg on Monday.

——Who can furnish us with numbers 15 and 19 of volumn 5 of the REPUBLICAN?

——The Bellefonte Brass Band, on last Thursday evening, maintained its reputation for gallantry by serenading Mr R. F. Rankin and his fair young bride.

——Every reliable and fair dealing business firm in any community is sure to receive its full share of patronage.—This fact is exemplified in the success of the milling establishment of J. M. Wagner & Co. Messrs. Garberick and Shull, the managers of this establishment, are men who are well known for their prompt and faithful attention to business. Under their management the mill has become one of the principal grain centres in this region. All who deal with them receive satisfaction.

——A little girl in one of the Bellefonte schools, last week, produced the following composition on "beds": "A bed is one of the comforts of life.—There are different kinds of beds. There is nothing like the sick-bed for repentance. Some people become so virtuous then that they will often repent of sins they have never committed. Some beds are always inhabited. People can't see any fun or religion in these inhabitants. their whole aim is to chase them out with shovel or tongs, and drive them to the brink of despair or ruin them with death. The prettiest bed, and the one most admired, is a flower-bed.

Our Centre county readers who have occasion to visit Philadelphia will be pleased to learn that Captain R D Cummings, who for many years was a popular hotel keeper in Bellefonte, has lately associated with him a gentleman, and has taken charge of the Merchants Hotel on Fourth street, a few doors above Market, which is the most convenient hotel for business men to stop at in Philadelphia. The "Merchants" will be kept as a first-class hotel at moderate prices, which should be an inducement for all Centre county people to stop there. Mr. Cummings is a subscriber to the REPUBLICAN, which will always be on his files to interest his guests.

——Last Saturday evening a week ago, as Mr. Anthony Deabler was on his way from Lock Haven to his home in Brush Valley, he was attacked by three men and robbed of twenty dollars. One of the party presented a revolver and told him to deliver his money and Deabler searched for his revolver, when the second one caught him by the throat, and then the three men robbed him, and not being content with this, they knocked him senseless, and he was found in about an hour afterward by some teamsters, who were on the road across the mountain. The robbery was committed on the Brush and Nittany turnpike, near what is known as Pettits' Mill.—Reporter.

——At Philipsburg a singular case lately came before one of the justices of the peace and the defendant having been bound over to appear at court, it is likely to become quite notorious. A young man became enamored of one of Philipsburg's fair young daughters, and in the improved stages of the courtship, he presented her with a valuable gold watch and chain. As time passed, their loving waxed irksome and finally an estrangement set in and the jewelry was demanded, which the young lady informed him she would never give up, but would keep as an offset for unrequited love. The gushing youth seeks to recover by a legal process and much fun is anticipated over it at the next term of court.

——In reference to our article, last week, on the question of having a Poor House and farm, a Houserville correspondent writes as follows: "We are are very much pleased with an article in your paper of the 25th ult., in regard to procuring Poor House and farm for Centre county's unfortunate poor. We have no doubt it would be an excellent plan and a great saving to the county.—Your article, after giving the result of investigations in two counties in dollars and cents, says, 'economy and justice to the taxpayers seem to demand it.' We agree with you here, but there are other and higher considerations in this question than justice to taxpayers, which is justice to the poor. It is well known that the paupers are given to the lowest bidder to keep, who are always rather poor people themselves, hence they are generally kept in cold houses, sleep in cold beds and live on cold victuals. We say build a Poor House for the poor of Centre county.

EAGLEVILLE.—We have a number of very excellent people living in this vicinity—people who are warm-hearted, kind, and benevolent, and who are not unmindful of those who care for their souls. The pastor of the Baptist Church has had several visits during the winter from the good and faithful portion of his flock, bearing testimony to their high appreciation of his services by leaving behind them money and such other articles as are indispensable in every family. The pastor has closed his labors with the Baptist church in this place and will in a few days become a resident of Milesburg. Thanks to the many friends and neighbors for their sympathy and hospitality. May the Lord reward them with peace and abundant prosperity. ZETA.

PERSONALS.—Col. D. G. Bush has returned from North Carolina, having sent the larger portion of his family to Jacksonville, Florida, to spend the balance of the winter.

—We noticed Major James Hemphill on the streets on Saturday

—Superintendent Magee informs us that he has already visited every school in the county and is now making his second round.

—S. F. Lytle, who for the past year has been attending the Bellevue Medical College, returned home on Wednesday last. He will return and complete his second course of lectures as soon as possible. Dr. Lytle is a graduate of the Penn. State College, and promises to make his mark in the profession he has chosen.

—Col. C. S. Johnson, president of the Pennsylvania and Western railroad, was looking up the interests of his company in this county last week. He feels confident that arrangements will soon be completed that will insure the speedy completion of the road. We heartily wish him success.

—H. T. Harvey, Esq., of Lock Haven, is a candidate for the office of District Attorney for the Western district of the State. So are Souther, Carnahan and McEnally. Carnahan filled the position with credit before Swope was appointed. McEnally is a personal friend of Senator Scott, and is a good, slow lawyer. Souther is an ex judge, an ex-State senator, and in every sense a strong man. Harvey is a promising young lawyer, a son-in-law of ex-Gov. Pollock, and a thoroughly honest and upright man. These entries are all good, and, although our personal preferences are for Mr. Harvey, we will be satisfied with any of them. In fact it isn't much of our business.

BELLEFONTE GLASS WORKS.—Our readers, many of them, perhaps, are not aware that the above works are now in successful and paying operation. Since the time the works first started, down through the different changes of proprietors and managements, there has been no time that the prospect for continued success was as bright as at present. Many of our best business men have entertained grave doubts as to whether the stockholders would ever realize their original investments, but under the present management there seems to be no room for discouragement. In the beginning of last October the works were rented by a co-operative asssociation of fourteen practical glass men, under the business name of Schad, Siegwarth & Co. Since that time the factory has been running regularly until about six weeks ago, when it was found that the constantly increasing demand for glass necessitated an enlargement of capacity. Going vigorously to work, in the space of six weeks, a new and enlarged furnace was completed. The old furnace held but eight pots of thirty-six inches diameter. The new one now holds ten pots, each of which is forty-two inches in diameter. The first melt was made on Saturday last, and the delicate operation of breaking in new pots was remarkably successful. The company is now able to make 900 boxes of glass per week. They employ about sixty men regularly, and consume about twelve tons of coal, and four to five tons of sand per day. The current monthly expenses amount to something over $9,000. They have special arrangements for freight over the Pennsylvania railroad, which enables them to compete in prices with any other glass factory in the State. The Bellefonte glass finds a ready sale in the market and commands the highest prices. The glass is clear and colorless, with no flaws or swirls.

Mr. Schad, the senior member of the firm, was for many years superintendent of the well-known Ravena glass works. He is a thorough master of the business, and is a man bound to succeed. The whole company of fourteen is made up of practical, experienced men, who are not afraid of work. There are no loafers or figure heads among them. Any day they may be seen working as hard and as long as their employees. It is a matter of congratulation to the stockholders of the company and to the business interests of Bellefonte generally, that the glass works are at last in the hands of men that will make success certain.

——Professor John S. Roberts of the "School in the Mountain" has made up his mind to return to the mission field of China. After having spent several years in Shanghai as a missionary, Mr. Roberts health failed and he was compelled to return to this country. Now that his health has been restored he feels in duty bound to return and spend his renewed vigor in the service of his Master. He will sail for China as soon as arrangements for his departure can be completed which will not be for several months. His many friends here will be sorry to loose him and all wish him God speed.

——It requires a good deal of christain fortitude to endure many crosses in this life, but one of the most trying things we know of is to sing the doxology with any degree of fervency after you have been sitting, during the course of a long sermon, beside an individual who only washes his feet quarterly.

MARCH 27.—At the farm of James Love in Half Moon, four head work horses, 18 head cattle, wagons, sleds, plows, harrows, gears, cultivators and all the farming utensils usually found on a well stocked farm.

——The Journal of last week gives the following chapter of a Rakes progress:

"On Wednesday a rather tall young fellow, decently dressed, was noticed loafing about the passenger depot nearly all the time until the Clearfield freight train, Conductor McFarland, left a-half-past three in the afternoon, when he was missing from the waiting room, and Philipsburg saw him no more. But he had not left the stage of action, het had only taken the box car of a freight train, and at Wallaceton the train hands opened one door of the car to unload some goods, while the young man disappeared through the other, and made good use of his legs. Upon the discovery that a barrel of whisky had been tapped, a cracker barrel broken open and a box of sarsaparilla bottles tampered with, they started after the retreating passenger, the snow enabling one of them to track him to a board pile underneath which he was ensconced. The brakeman commanded him to come forth, but he demurred, and said that the brakeman having no warrant, could not make an arrest. The brakeman called to his companions and they told the chap they guessed they would take him along anyway. So they took him back and shut him in the car, and when they arrived at Bigler's a message was sent over the wires to the Superintendent at Tyrone, who dispatched to Clearfield and on the arrival of the train the constable was on hand to arrest the gentleman. He gave his name as Scott McGuire, and his pockets contained crackers from the barrel in the car, and a bottle of sarsaparilla. He now reposes in jail."

YACUP.—The entertainment in the Opera House on Wednesday evening was the best of the kind ever given to a Bellefonte audience. The public must have had some intimation that it was a good entertainment, because the attendance was slim. This sign never fails. If a real, genuine, meritorious troupe or lecturer does come to town, his audience is generally about as large as an average Wednesday evening prayer meeting. This is a dignified, high-toned way our people have of making themselves felt. There are some points on which the people of Bellefonte never agree, and the morality of the play and ability of the lecturer are often subjects for dispute, but we feel thankful that there is one place where prejudices and doctrines are cast aside, and where all can meet on the common level—of a circus arena. This is one bond of union still unbroken and dear to the heart of the true Bellefonter.

——Old Sam Cartner, in the last forty years, has made for himself a reputation for economy, in fact he has some reputation for getting money in ways that not one man in a hundred would think of, even if he possessed sufficient force of character to put it through. Last Saturday Cartner's son Alfred, who lives in the west, and who had been visiting his father, found it necessary to return home on the afternoon train. A ragged colored boy was engaged to carry Alfred's large valise to the station. After the son had bid his father and friends good-bye he mounted the platform of the car, and in return for his valise handed the colored boy a ten cent piece. The young lad, not used to being paid for such errands, innocently asked the father, who was looking on, who it was for. Samuel Cartner took the ten-cent piece from the boy and, placing it in his vest pocket said, "Alfred will die a beggar if he throws his money away in that manner."

DIED.

At Pleasant View on the morning of the 2nd inst., Joseph, son of William and Sarah Blair, aged 17 years and 5 days.

For about three months he has laid on a bed of sickness. He bore it all like a Christian, without a murmur or a complaint. His remains were taken to Houserville, the Funeral Sermon was preached by the Rev. Chambers, assisted by Revs. Norcross and Robison.

"Forever with the Lord." With these words would offer consolation to those deeply afflicted ones who lost so much that was lovely in life and spirit, when Joseph Blair died—lost for a while to them, yet the have the sure hope that he is in Heaven, "Fovever with the Lord." Possessed of a warm and loving heart, of an unselfish, generous nature, he has left behind him loving and gentle and appreciative hearts that speak of him as always doing his part in life truly and well. He has gone before, and it may be that when death comes again into that family that they may meet their Son or brother in Heaven, singing the song of Moses and the Lamb, where there is no grief, no pain, no suffering, but rest in peace forever. Many will mourn their loss as a brother and as a friend. "Blessed are they who die in the Lord."

Death has been here and borne away
A brother from our side;
Just in the morning of his life
As young as we he died.

Not long ago he filled his place,
And sat with us to learn;
But he has run his mortal race,
And never can return.

Perhaps our time may be as short,
Our days may fly as fast;
O, Lord, impress the sober thought,
That this may be our last.

We cannot tell who next may fall,
Beneath thy chast'ning rod;
One must be first, but let us all
Prepare to meet our God.

MARRIED

At Oak Hall, Feb. 25th, by Rev. Robt. Hamill, D. D., Mr. John I. Orman to Miss Laura E. Leighty, all of Haines Township.

Feb. 26th, by Eld. Kenter of Lock Haven, Mr. Nelson P. Riddle to Miss Angelina Hughes, both of Howard.

Feb. 26th, at house of bride's father by the Rev. Witherow, Robert Rankin of Bellefonte, to Miss Lillie Bletz of Columbia.

The unfortunate couple were assisted in the obsequies by Messrs Harry Hicks, W. S. Wagner, Theodore Gordon and Frank Montgomery, aided by a corresponding number of Columbia's weeping daughters. They returned home on Thursday and in the evening a large number of anxious friends called on them to offer words of condolence. We had been anticipating this sudden taking off for some time. There appeared something in Robert's manner, of late, that foreboded trouble but we did not expect it so soon. It is sad to contemplate the number of our young men who have lately thrown themselves away in this reckless manner. One by one they turn Benedicts and are gone forever, and but few of us are left to weep over their misfortune. They have our undying sympathy.

BUSINESS NOTICES.

"HEALING ON THE WINGS," say all who have made use of Dr. Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry, and by such use been cured of coughs, colds, bronchitis, sore throat, influenza or consumption. The prudent will always keep this standard remedy by them.

WE understand that the whooping-cough is quite prevalent in the towns around us; but that no cases have proved fatal. Some families use nothing but Johnson's Anodyne Liniment. Our Doctor, however, says a little ipicac, to produce vomiting, would be an advantage.

There are more than one thousand different kinds of pills in the United States. Some of them are worthless and injurious, others are good and beneficial. Old Dr. Parsons invented the best anti-billious pill we ever saw or heard of. They are now sold under the name of Parsons' Purgative Pills.

DYSPEPSIA! DYSPEPSIA! DYSPEPSIA!

Dyspepsia is the most perplexing of all human ailments. Its symptoms are almost infinite in their variety, and the forlorn and despondent victims of the disease often fancy themselves the prey, in turn, of every known malady. This is due, in part, to the close sympathy which exists between the stomach and the brain, and in part also to the fact that any disturbance of the digestive function necessarily disorders the liver, the bowels and the nervous system, and effects, to some extent, the quality of the blood.

E F. Kunkle's Bitter Wine of Iron a sure cure. This is not a new preparation, to be tried and found wanting; it has been prescribed daily for many years in the practice of eminent physicians with unparalleled success: it is not expected or intended to cure all the diseases to which the human family is subject, but is warranted to cure Dyspepsia in its most obstinate form. Kunkle's Bitter Wine of Iron never fails to cure. Symptoms of Dyspepsia are loss of appetite, wind and rising of the food, dryness of the mouth, heartburn, distension of the stomach and bowels, constipation headache, dizziness, sleeplessness and low spirits. Try the great remedy and be convinced of its merits. Get the genuine. Take only Kunkel's which is put only in $1 bottles. Depot, 259 North Ninth Street Philadelphia.

For sale by all Druggists and dealers everywhere.

Centaur Liniment.

There is no pain which the Centaur Liniment will not relieve, no swelling they will not subdue, and no lameness which they will not cure. This is strong language, but it is true. They have produced more cures of rheumatism, neuralgia, lock-jaw, palsy, sprains, swellings, caked-breasts scalds, burns, salt-rheum, earache, &c., &c., upon the human frame, and of strains spavin, galls. &c., upon animals in one year than have all other pretended remedies since the world began. They are counter-irritant, all-healing pain reliever. Cripples throw away their crutches, the lame walk, poisonous bites are endered harmless, and the wounded are healed without a scar. The recipe is published around each bottle. They sell as no articles ever before sold, and they sell because they do just what they pretends to do. Those who now suffer from rheumatism, pain or swelling, deserve to suffer if they will not use Centaur Liniment. More than 1000 certificates of remarkable cures, including frozen limbs, chronic rheumatism, gout, running tumors, &c., have been received. We will send a circular containing certificates, the recipe, &c., gratis, to any one requesting it. One bottle of the yellow wrapper Centaur Liniment is worth one hundred dollars for spavined or sweenied horses and mules, or for screw-worm in sheep. Stock-owners—these liniments are worth your attention. No family should be without them. "White wrapper for family use;" Yellow wrapper for animals. Sold by all Druggists. 50 cents per bottle; large bottles $1 00. J. B. ROSS & Co., 53 Broadway, New York.

CASTORIA is more than a substitute for Castor Oil. It is the only safe article in existence which is certain to assimilate the food, regulate the bowels, cure wind-colic and produce natural sleep. It contains neither minerals, morphine or alcohol, and is pleasant to take. Children need not cry and mothers may rest.
